August 25, 2003

Dear Mike,

It has been a long time since I last heard from you. Did you get my last letter? I know you have been very busy and haven't had time to write to me. It is time to go back to school in the U.S. now, and you are going to be a junior, aren't you? I am still a sophomore. The Japanese school system is different from yours. I am writing this letter because I want to tell you about the school system in Japan.

The school year is from April to March. We all go to elementary and junior high school and then we decide to go to high school or not. More than 90% of students go to high school.

As you know, entrance examinations to colleges are very difficult to pass. If a student does not pass, he or she goes to a special school to study for the next year's examination. Graduating from college is not as difficult as entering, so if they pass the entrance examinations, many students enjoy student life and don't study hard. I hope I am not one of those students.

Please tell me about your school life. Bye for now.

Your friend,

Takashi

Do you like green tea? How often do you drink it? Green tea is getting popular in Australia. People can drink it in tea rooms and buy it at the store.

Australian people care a lot about their health. They think Japanese food is healthy, so it became popular. Now they think Japanese green tea is a healthy drink. Green tea has tannins. Tannin has a lot of catechin. Some scientists say that people will not get cancer if they have a lot of catechin. People in Shizuoka do not die of cancer very often. Maybe it is because people there make and drink a lot of green tea.

Green tea is made from the same leaves as black tea. Then is green tea different from black tea? The answer is "Yes." Green tea is dried for a shorter time. So some Australians drink it as an herb tea. They sometimes drink green tea with honey. Isn't that interesting?
